I found the ISPIM event enlightening and value packed. Not only did I get to meet people like me who are working to make innovation successful in their organisations, but I also got to hear about the breakthrough research being conducted by leading universities from all across the world. The opportunities for networking are also a major benefit of this type of event! Mark Redmond, Ergon Energy, Australia

ISPIM is unique in bringing together people from across the innovation spectrum. Whether you are a student or researcher, a government officer or a businessperson, there will be something of interest, and of use, to you. ISPIM events are also an excellent way to connect with people working in other areas of innovation that you might not normally meet, providing different perspectives on innovation and innovation management. Chris Nedin, Innovation Policy Branch, Department of Industry, Australia
