Does your organisation need to:

Tania
de Jong

- Fast-track internal strategy to manage change, disruption and performance?
- Develop skills of the future and prepare for a rapidly changing world?
- Build a collaborative, purpose-driven and innovative culture?
- Develop more right-brained, intuitive, resilient, agile, creative thinking and mindsets to think 'outside the box' and solve wicked problems?
- Break down siloes, build bridges and join the dots?
- Empower your people and communities to find true wellbeing and meaningful purpose so that they can unleash their full potential?
- Include diverse voices, foster curiosity, generosity, understanding and a true sense of belonging to build communities that care and a collective future?
- Galvanise teams and improve organisational wellbeing?

It is no ordinary time in the history of civilisation. The world is moving faster than we can think; so we have to change our thinking! The transformation upon us means at least three things...Fear, Change and Opportunity.

What if you could fast-track your thinking about change and the future? As the pace of change accelerates, we are increasingly asking individuals and organisations to become more agile.

Tomorrow's competitive success will be based on the implementation of creative ideas and the ability to keep up with an ever-accelerating world.

“Things are getting better and better and worse and worse, faster and faster, simultaneously.”

What does it mean to be human in an age of increasing technological acceleration, global unrest and growing disconnection?

We live in troubling, divisive and uncertain times. Yet we talk more to boxes and screens than one another. Rates of loneliness, social isolation and mental illness are increasing, and we are numbing our fear and anxiety through a range of distractions and substances.

One in four Australians now have a chronic mental illness. One in six are on anti-depressants and suicide rates are increasing. Climate change, complex issues, social media and concerns about the future are causing significant additional anxiety, particularly amongst younger people.

If we cannot raise our consciousness and keep up with the accelerating pace of change, is the cost going to be ever-increasing rates of mental illness? How can we collectively heal our trauma and state of anxiety and despair? Together we can find new ways of building resilience, adapting our minds, our emotions and our perspectives in a rapidly changing world. What kind of future do we want for our children and grandchildren?
